A breath of fresh air

Often, places like toilets, kitchens and boiler rooms are difficult to aerate as a result of lack of windows or scarce airflow ... To avoid stale air and in accordance with air or gas ventilation regulations, we recommend that the doors of these rooms have grilles or openings that guarantee ventilation through the door leaves.

The Perfect finish

CARLOS DÍAZ REINOSA

Head of Finishing Section. 18 years with Sanrafael

Carlos, what do varnish or lacquer in a door mean for you? I understand that it is the most important process for the protection of the door with a long-term guarantee. Let's say we have to protect them from liquids, blows, damages, cracks and aging, since the door will last a long time until its replacement and it must be well protected.

How is the finish you make different?

There are many little things. It is very important that it is non pollutant. We finish Sanrafael doors with water based finishes, which will allow it not to yellow, especially in the case of lacquering. We have developed the base of the finish to have a greater anti-scratch hardness, greater protection in the application of bio products ... Also the successive sanding, applications to CNC, number of layers, and the greater weight that gives, that special touch, with more body and extra silkiness.

What finishes are the most demanded?

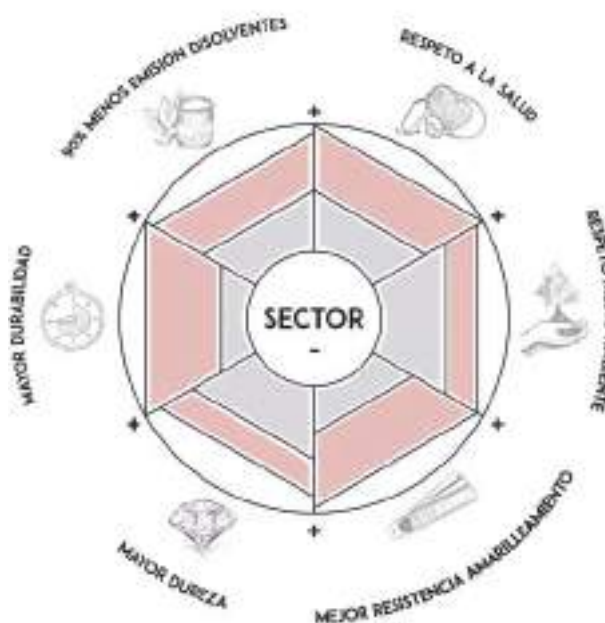

For a few years the lacquer has grown, but not only the white one. Colours like black, sand or gray tones are very common. The open grain finishes are enjoyed too, the special treatment we give is very natural and brings out the richness of the grain of the wood. Finally, I would say the stains, in natural tones: pearl (whitish), betulla (gray), earth (brown), chocolate, coffee or azabache are finishes that people like.

How can we know if a finish is good or bad?

Touch does not usually lie. It is very important that it looks natural, with no bubbles or lack of body. The palm of the hand should slide smoothly over the surface.

The edges and grooves are the main weak points of the door and that is where we will see any imperfections. Never go the same as the front smooth part but it is a good clue to know the quality of the product

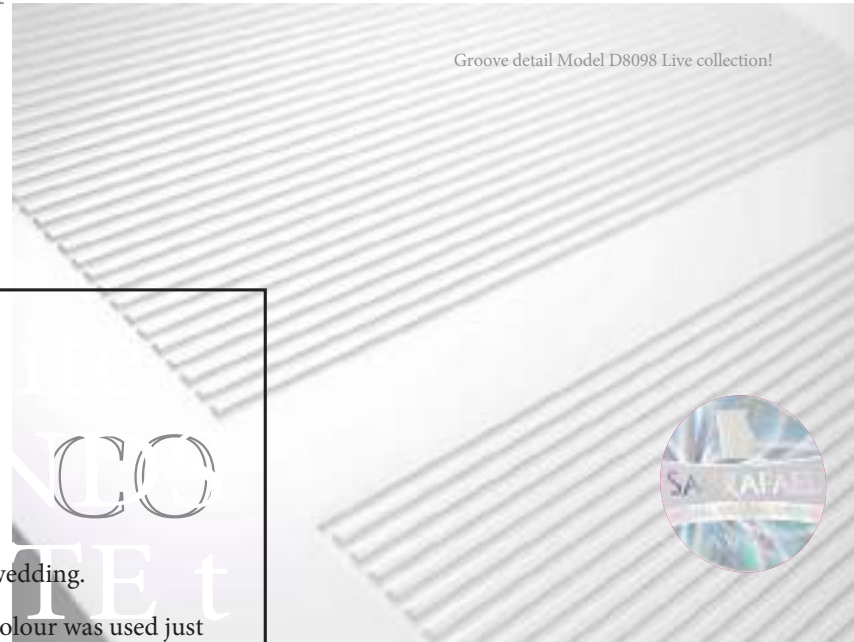

Thank you ;)
